America and Japan reporting big gains in Vietnamese enrolment (20 April)

By ICEF Monitor staff: 20 April 2016

Short on time? Here are the highlights:

- The number of Vietnamese students abroad began to expand rapidly around 2006 and shows no sign of cooling off
- Over the last two years, Japan and the US have seen gains of nearly 50% in their Vietnamese enrolments
- This continued growth is being fuelled by a hot Vietnamese economy, along with a correspondingly rapid expansion of the country's middle class, as well as persistent concerns about the quality of higher education within Vietnam
